COLUMBIA, ADAIR COUNTY, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY MAY 14, 1913.

NUMBER 28

Death of an Excellent Lady.

Mrs. Mary Baker, the beloved wife of H. E. Baker, died at Campbellsville, last Thursday night, and the interment was in Brookside Cemetery Friday. She was a lady of many excellent traits of character, a devout member of the Baptist church. She was about fifty-five years old and was a daughter of Judge R. S. Montague, who died many years ago. Her surviving husband, Mr. Horace E. Baker, was born and reared in Columbia. The deceased was also known to many residents of this place, and her demise brought sorrow to all her friends.

Besides the husband, she is survived by eight children. May God comfort them in the great affliction that has come to the home that will never again seem the same, for there is no real home without mother.

They should be comforted, however, for they have been taught "that in my Father's house there are many mansions; were it not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."

Will Not be Raised.

Judge N. H. Moss, Gordon Montgomery, John Wolford, A. D. Patterson and J. Z. Conover, who went before the Board of Equalization, Frankfort, last week, accomplished their purpose. The County Judge had been notified to appear and show cause why the property of Adair county should not be raised 10 per cent. After the Board heard the statements of the Adair delegation it decided not to raise the county—a saving of $2,500 to the county. Praise is due the above named gentlemen for their prompt attention to the matter.

Auction Sale.

On Saturday, May 31, 1913, we will sell at auction our household goods and hotel fixtures in Russell Springs, Ky. 16 Dresses, 16 washstands, 16 iron bedsteads, 16 cotton mattresses, a great number of chairs, tables, stoves, tableware, bowls and pitchers, and many other things too numerous to mention. We will also sell or exchange our Russell Springs property as a whole or will sell in lots any part of it private. Sale will begin at 10 o'clock, Saturday morning, the 31st of May. Ad. 28-2t. Bicknell & Harris.

On account of two baccalaureate sermons to be preached in this place next Sunday, the Baptist people will not hold any service. Rev. A. R. Kasey will speak in the forenoon at the Methodist Church before the Lindsey-Wilson pupils, and Rev. Crawford will address the Graded School at the Presbyterian Church in the evening. Every body invited to attend the services.

Eld. W. G. Montgomery will assist Eld. Z. T. Williams in a series of meetings which will begin at the Christian church, this place, the first Sunday in June. Miss Mamie Depp, of Glasgow, pleasantly remembered here, will lead the song service. The co-operation of all the denominations in Columbia is requested by the pastor.

"The Value of Man" was Rev. J. S. Chandler's subject last Sunday night. It was not our pleasure to hear it, but it is spoken of as one of the finest discourses delivered in this town for a long time. It is said to have abounded in thoughts that every man in the community should have heard.

The school money is here, and Miss Pearl Hindman is ready to make final settlement with the teachers. The Superintendent requests the teachers to call before Friday and Saturday, as she will be in the examination on those days.

Mrs. Zach Bardin, who lived at Bliss, this county, died last Wednesday morning. She had been sick for about a year. The interment was the day following, and many friends attended.

Columbia Lodge, No. 96, Free and Accepted Masons, will meet next Friday evening. A full attendance is desired. Work in the third degree.

The two men and a woman arrested at Albany Landing, last week, charged with robbing the Monticello post office, proved to be not the parties wanted.

Mrs. James Holladay, of this county, gathered one hundred dozen eggs from eighty hens during the month of April.

All Odd-Fellows in regular standing are requested to be at the hall next Thursday night. There will be work.

A slight frost here Monday morning—not enough to damage vegetation.

He Accommodated His Friend.

Leslie county is as dry as a powder horn. Recently Isaac Pope, of that county, went from home, but before starting, Robert Walker, a friend, gave Pope a dollar and told him to bring him a quart of whiskey. Walker got the liquor, but Pope was indicted, tried and fined. The case went to the Court of Appeals and a few days ago Judge Lassing rendered an opinion, the other Judges on the bench agreeing, sustaining the judgment of the lower court. The opinion was as follows: "Any person or corporation carrying intoxicating liquors into local option territory, even for accommodation, except common carriers to licensed druggists, are liable to a fine of from $20 to $100 and from 10 to 20 days in jail or both." It was agreed that Pope got nothing for carrying the liquor, not even a drink.

Lindsey-Wilson Parade.

Every body in Columbia was called from their places of business last Friday forenoon to witness the parade of the Lindsey-Wilson students. The young ladies were all dressed in white, many of them carrying flags and the school pennant. The young men were attractively attired, making the procession a fine drawing card for the Field Day exercises which opened in the afternoon. No finer body of young gentlemen and ladies has ever been on parade in this town.

Notice.

The Town Council and the Board of Health have set apart Thursday and Friday, May the 15th and 16th, as cleaning up days. Every house-keeper and every business man is required to clean his premises, looking especially after the back yards and back lots. Gather up all the old rubbish—tin cans, old broken bottles, old stoves, and tin ware, old clothing, old shoes, and everything that is offensive to the eye or ear. Put the rubbish in boxes and barrels and place them near the streets and alleys, where the wagon which will be sent around on Saturday can get at them. When you read this notice, remember it means you. The town Marshal and the Health Officer will see that this order is complied with. Signed by W. R. Myers of the Town Council, U. L. Taylor, of the Board of Health.

Known Here.

Announcement has been received in this city of the marriage, on April 5th, of Miss Arreda Roberts, of Verona, Ky., to Mr. Omer H. Powers. Miss Roberts has many friends here, where she formerly taught in the Graded School. Mr. and Mrs. Powers will make their home in Verona.

Keep up with the dates at the Lindsey-Wilson. Beginning this (Tuesday) evening, there will be four entertainments this week. The entertainments will come in the following order: Piano graduates recital, Tuesday evening. Expression graduates recital Thursday evening. Piano recital, Friday evening. An evening of plays Saturday evening.

John F. Richardson, who lived at Knifley, Adair county, was run over by a freight train last Tuesday week, near Winchester, and killed. He left Adair county about one week before the accident occurred. Persons who know him say he was a dissipated man.

There are eight announced candidates for jailer on the Democratic ticket. If the party should equally divide its vote less than two hundred would nominate.

Voters who are signing petitions should bear in mind that if they sign for more than one candidate for a particular office, the name will not be counted.

For the last two weeks the weather has been propitious for corn planting, and the farmers throughout the county have got in their crops.

Eld. Tobias Huffaker will preach at Gooden School-house next Sunday at the eleven o'clock hour.

A little son of Mr. John Barnes, Jamestown, died one day last week.

Born, to the wife of J. R. Garnett, May 5, 1913, a son.

Circuit Court will open next Monday and a large crowd will be drawn to Columbia.

John A. Hobson, Greensburg, Ky., will pay you best prices for your hogs, sheep or cattle. Write or phone him.

Commencement Dates of Adair County Graded School.

Baccalaureate sermon—Rev. Crawford, Sunday night, May Eighteenth, Presbyterian church at eight o'clock. Class Day—Tuesday afternoon, May Twentieth, Columbia Graded School, two o'clock. Class Address—Judge H. C. Baker, Tuesday evening, May Twentieth, at eight o'clock, Christian church. Field Day—Wednesday, afternoon, May Twenty-first, Fair Grounds, one o'clock. Commencement Exercises—Thursday evening, May Twenty-second, at Lindsey-Wilson church, eight o'clock.

PLAYS.

"At The End of The Rainbow," given by High School pupils Wednesday evening, May 14th, Court-house, eight o'clock.

"Bibi" given by Primary and Intermediate Grades, Wednesday evening, May 21st, C. H. S. Chapel nine o'clock. Everyone invited to attend all of these exercises.

Musical Recital.

The Pianoforte recital by the pupils of Mrs. Geo. W. Lowe's class, last Friday evening, was a decided success in every particular. The Parlor Circle Hall could not accommodate many who called to seek entrance. The playing of the young ladies showed skill and great advancement, and lovers of music pronounced it one of the best and most faultless entertainments ever given in Columbia. Mrs. Lowe should feel gratified at the showing made by her pupils, and the pupils should feel proud of their teacher.

Miss Loretta Dunbar, a most pleasant reader, assisted in the entertainment and she acquitted herself well, and also delighted the audience.

R. L. Johnston Dead.

A telegram received here Monday morning by Mrs. A. I. Hurt stated that her brother, Richard Lee Johnston, died at his late home, in Little Rock Ark., on May 11th at 7 o'clock, a.m. The deceased was 61 years old and is survived by his wife and five children, namely: Mrs. P. V. Grissom, Mrs. Walter Rowe, Mrs. Willard Welch, Mr. R. L. Johnston, Jr., of Little Rock, and Mrs. George Chambers, of Oklahoma, and one sister, Mrs. A. I. Hurt, who resides here, two brothers, S. D. Johnston, of Mariana, Ark., and W. E. Johnston, of Milltown, Ky.

Coming Term of Circuit Court.

For the coming May term of the Adair Circuit Court, there are 23 appearance suits, divided as follows: 15 Equity causes, 5 Common Law, and 3 Appeals.

On the Commonwealth's Docket are 11 Felonies and 83 Misdemeanors, before the court.

"Mother's Day" was observed at the Christian Church last Sunday forenoon. The program was entertaining, and white flowers were very much in evidence. Eld. Williams' sermon on same subject, was full of good expressions. His tribute to mother was beautiful and pathetic.

Mr. Geo. Akin, of Sparksville, who is at all times looking out for something good to eat, and he invariably finds it, went to Cumberland river last week and caught about fifty pounds of fine fish.

A holiness band of colored people from Dayton, Ohio, gave a service on the public square last Saturday about sunset. Up to Wednesday night they will preach in the colored school house.

The time for furnishing the Louisville Daily Herald, one year, for $1.75 has expired. No more subscriptions at that price will be received at this office.

In a very few days the Lindsey-Wilson and the Public School will close for the summer. It will seem a long time to Columbians until the first of September.

It is most likely that several male and horse dealers will be here next ~~Monday~~, the ~~first~~ day of circuit court. It would be a good idea for farmers who have marketable stock to bring it to town.

The Horse and the Gumdrops.

It happened one day in mid-winter on a street in one of the large cities. Two large horses were pulling a great wagon filled with heavy mail bags, and as they attempted to turn the corner, one of them slipped on the icy pavement and fell to the ground.

The driver, who was in a hurry to deliver the mail at the station where the train was already made up to carry it to the West, tried in every way he could think of to get the horse on his feet again, but all efforts failed. As soon as the animal would get to his knees and attempt to rise, his broad, smooth shoes would slip and down he would go again.

A crowd of people had collected, some offered suggestions, others simply stood and looked on, never even trying to help either the horse or his driver. Then a gentleman came across the street to see what was the trouble.

When he took in the situation, he walked a little way down the street and purchased a cent's worth of gumdrops from a vendor, then came back and unfolding his morning paper, laid two of the sweet balls upon it within easy reach of the horse's head.

The horse smelled the candy, and lapping one up, soon his mouth was drooping with satisfaction. He did not swallow it, but rolled it about on his tongue as if he was trying to make it last as long as possible. Then he took the second drop, and in a minute or two made another attempt to rise, just as though he must do something to pay for the treat. The gentleman and the driver then spread a large blanket on the pavement, and, setting his feet on this, the animal was able to get up without difficulty.

"An Eskimo will work an entire day for a single gumdrop," said the gentleman, as the horse finally got on his feet, "so why should not a big, strong horse do the same?" That question was not answered by the laughing crowd, but the driver of the wagon said those gumdrops were worth their weight in gold to him.

"I'll always carry some candy in my pocket," he shouted as he drove briskly off to the waiting train.

All the beating in the world would not have accomplished what a little thought and the reward of the sweets did in this case. Animals are all alike in this respect, and so are most girls and boys—if they are scolded and driven they are very apt to balk. Treat them with thoughtful kindness and reward them with a trifling gift, and there is not much you cannot get them to do for you. Remember this when you are dealing with the little folks and with dumb animals.

for the Weak and Nervous.

Tired-out, weak, nervous men and women would feel ambitious, energetic and full of life and always have a good appetite, if they would do the sensible thing for health—take Electric Bitters. Nothing better for the stomach, liver or kidneys. Thousands say they owe their lives to this wonderful home remedy. Mrs. O. Rhinehardt, of Vestal Center, N. Y., says: "I regard Electric Bitters as one of the greatest of gifts. I can never forget what it has done for me." Get a bottle yourself and see what a difference it will make in your health. Only 50¢ and $1.00. Recommended by Paul Drug Co.

Wisdom.

Some very serious mistakes have been made in human affairs by supposing that learning and contact with books and schools would confer that highest of all human qualities—wisdom. Theoretically speaking, a sound and thorough education ought to bring wisdom in its training, but it often fails.

A certain very successful physician was once consulted by a patient who asked this question: "Doctor is it best for a man to give up all he knows about his own case and take the word of a doctor for it?" The answer was as follows and it was a truly wise and comprehensive one:

"Well, that depends upon how much wisdom either the patient or the doctor has. All patients should understand their body well, for they have had a good deal of experience with it, but they don't; they lack the power of wise deduction. All doctors should have the ability to diagnose the disease correctly and judge wisely what is the trouble, but they don't. They may have great learning, but they lack the power of wise judgment. Learning helps, but wise judgment is the supreme quality after all. It is a born gift."

We have often thought of this doctor's remark as applied to the farmer. The knowledge and mental training that comes through books and schools is a great help, but it is not wisdom of judgment. Some men seem to have this gift of wise judgment even with very limited education. Other men with abundant schooling lack wisdom, the power to judge best what to do next. This individual equation, the man behind the farm, is a great thing. The power to choose wisely has always been esteemed one of the highest of human gifts. Coupled with energy it is what makes the great farmer, the great general, the great statesman.

Ordered to Work.

Gov. Hatfield, of West Virginia, has done what no other state executive ever did. He has ordered 10,000 striking coal miners to go to work. True, as mediator between the operators and the miners he has succeeded in adjusting all differences except that relating to recognition of the union, which he says is a matter which the operators and miners can settle themselves; and he regards this of so little importance compared to the interests of the state, which has now expended approximately a million dollars in maintaining order in the coal regions, that he feels justified in issuing the order that he has.

As chief executive of the state he probably is justified in taking the position he has, but it is a question whether or not the operators and miners will recognize the importance of the interest which the governor represents.

Black Rot.

The name of this disease itself really tells the whole story. The comb turns black and the tissues seem to be dead and the diseased parts will rot off or become separated in time from the rest of the comb and leaves a very unsightly stump as when the comb has been frosted. Black rot is found only in high combed breeds, only rare cases of black rock in birds that have low combs. The cause of this trouble is due from improper circulation of blood through the comb which causes the tissues to become dead. Most every case of black rot will be caused from some kind of liver trouble. Every time the liver gets out of order the comb will show it and tells the whole story.

In the early stages of black rot the comb will be just a little dark, generally the points become pale or purplish, and in a few days the whole comb will become dark. Cases where the bird is in a healthy condition and with strong vitality the diseased portion of the comb will separate from the other and fall off leaving the stump. The color changes from a purple to a blue and then to black. The bird will not have much appetite, and will stand around in a stupid position and will have very little energy.

Just as soon as you notice a bird of your flock with a dark comb you should catch it at once and place in a coop, and begin immediate treatment, for in advanced stages of black rot treatment is of little value then and nothing can be done. Feed plenty of Green food and do not give stimulants; see that the bird has plenty of sunlight and fresh air. Paint the comb three times a day with the following lotion: water one ounce, glycerine three-fourths of an ounce, and carbolic acid crystals one grain. Now add one teaspoonful of muriate of ammonia to each pint of the drinking water, this will help the liver perform the duties more easily.

Phosphate of soda is also said to be good; give the sick bird one-half tablespoonful daily. Now the treatment of blackrot will be of little value as I said above, but the proper way to begin treatment is to locate the cause underlying the trouble and try to prevent more cases from appearing and deal with the old cases the best way you can. Mild cases can be cured if taken in time, but advanced cases treatment will not do much good.

Health a Factor in Success.

The largest factor contributing to a man's success is undoubtedly health. It has been observed that a man is seldom sick when his bowels are regular—he is never well when they are constipated. For constipation you will find nothing quite so good as Chamberlain's Tablets. They not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion. They are sold by Paul Drug Co.

In June Harvard University will bestow the degree of doctor of philosophy upon Norbert Weiner, eighteen years old. "Not so wurst."

The University of Chicago professor who says that when the temperature goes up morals go down has yet to reconcile his saying with the fact that waves of crime occur most frequently in the winter.

DEPARTING FROM OLD TRADITIONSHigh Schools Aid in Developing Kentucky Fruit Growing.*60,000 TREES IN ONE PLOT.

Extensive Apple Growing Associations Launched in Rowan and Hardin Counties—Movement Means Wider Use of Agriculture and Horticulture in Rural High Schools of the State.

The present year has seen a great impetus given to the fruit growing interests in Kentucky. Two different sections of the state have launched extensive co-operative apple growing associations. Both in Rowan and in Hardin counties the work has been helped and developed by our state department of agriculture. The department has furnished these counties

60,000 NEWLY GRAFTED APPLE TREES. with four standard varieties of apple trees free of charge and has also agreed to advise and train the members of the association in the care and general cultivation of the young trees and orchards during the next five years.

When the newly grafted young trees were received by the association in Rowan county they were divided among the members, to be placed in home gardens for the summer's growth. In Hardin county it was decided best to plant and cultivate the 60,000 young trees in one nursery plot. While plans were being discussed as to the best place and manner of caring for this nursery work the agricultural class of the county high school offered to take the trees and carry them through the summer until transplanting time next autumn.

Just next to the high school at Elizabethtown a fertile piece of sod land was broken and carefully prepared for the tender young stock. The day the planting took place was made something of a gala day for the students, especially as two experts from the state agricultural station, a government expert and a Louisville newspaper man came to inspect the work.

When the 60,000 trees, enough to set 1,500 acres, were stacked in the side yard they did not look as if they would require much time to plant. But after the bundles were opened and tiny bunches that could be held in one hand were seen to contain seventy-five or a hundred small trees the boys started first at the bundles and then at the well worked ground.

The splendid part of this work lies in the fact that the high school is stepping outside of the old, narrow, musty limits of educational tradition and is doing something of very definite value for the community. It will undoubtedly be of great benefit to the boys who do the work, their fathers, their friends and neighbors, in gaining a new viewpoint of what education will mean in the coming years.

The development of Kentucky's resources should be the first aim of every citizen, and when the enormous practical value of this work is realized it will give a great impetus to every form of agricultural endeavor.

If this work is a pronounced success this year it will naturally mean a wider use of agriculture and horticulture in our rural high schools over the whole state. When this comes it will also mean that each community will be willing to put much larger sums of money into its school than it has in the past. Let us hope that many high schools will follow this splendid start.

TRAIN YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS RIGHT

Don't Let Them Waste Time on Useless Studies.

WHAT CAN YOU EXPECT?

A Boy Trained For a Profession Is Not Apt to Be Contented or Successful as a Farmer—Yet Agriculture Is Quite as Important as the Classics or the "Learned" Professions.

Could you expect to rear a fine trotting horse or a good steady farm animal if you sent the beast in its early youth to a man who trained a stableful of fancy saddle stock? Can you expect your boy to go through the ordinary rural high school and have him "stay hitched" on the farm? These propositions are identical. The average county high school holds up ideals and teaches topics that will necessarily lead the boy to sigh for a city career in the learned professions, so called.

Are you and I to blame? Of course we are. It is only necessary for the parent, the taxpayers, the everyday folks who hold the purse strings to say: "Here, we have had enough of an education that is so old that it is musty—an education that is all books. Give our children an education that fits them for life here at home."

This new education that will fit people for life is coming, but it is coming too slowly in the country. Our very best young blood is being siphoned out of the country and into the city. The cities do not need this fine new blood; the country does.

It is quite easy to say that the cry is rising, "Back to the farm." But it is not at all easy for the city man to go—in fact, the city man, the man bred and born in a big city, can hardly go back to the soil with any degree of certainty that he will succeed. He lacks the technical part of farm work that comes through daily contact with live, growing things, that contact which the country boy has had since the day he first began to notice things.

If these statements seem at all too strong simply pick up the Kentucky Educational Directory of 1912. Turn to the list of county high schools on page 34 and run through them. Out of about 180 approved high schools 114 are classical or English high schools and only thirty-six are scientific high schools.

Just so long as our country boys are pushed through schools that are classical in their tendencies just so long will our rural population drift cityward, for their education has developed them most carefully for that life.

IF YOUR BOY IS TO FARM TRAIN HIM FOR A FARMER.
IF YOUR BOY IS TO BE A PROFESSIONAL MAN TRAIN HIM IN THAT DIRECTION.

THIS IS 1913.

Would you plant and harvest as in 1850? Would you light your house as in 1850? Would you cook over the fire as in 1850? Would you use a "muzzle loader" as in 1850? Would you breed razorbacks as in 1850?

If everything on your farm and in your home bears the mark of 1913 why will you insist upon a school that was planned in 1850?

If your children are to live and earn a living in 1913 would it not be better to give them a 1913 education?

BY ALL MEANS.

Superintendent Barker has the right idea. He proposes to establish an agricultural course in the West Liberty high school. That should have been done at the outset. Wonder if there be any who are so shortsighted as to oppose? We hope not. An awful howl would be raised if some one should propose to take history, grammar or civics out of the curriculum. Agriculture is just as important as either of these.—Editorial Licking Valley Courier.

Courting Thirty Years.

Opinions have always varied concerning how long matrimonial engagements should last, and most people are agreed that they should not last more than a year or two. Recently, however, some cases have come to light of loving couples having waited for so long before they were able to marry that when the "happy day" arrived they had developed into quite old men and women.

At the beginning of the present year, for instance, a German slipper-maker, named Hessberg, led to the altar a woman to whom he had been engaged for over 30 years. When he was quite a young man, only 28, in fact, he met and fell in love with a charming young girl, to whom he plighted his troth. The marriage actually settled when a rich aunt threatened to disinherit him if he should wed the lady of his choice. Accordingly the wedding was postponed until the aunt died, but when her will was read it was found that she had left her money to her nephew only on conditions that he did not marry his sweetheart until 30 years from the time of his aunt's decease. Hessberg and his sweetheart consulted together over what they should do, and finally decided to wait the 30 years before becoming united.

In February last the long period of waiting expired, and the happy but much aged couple were made man and wife.

A romantic marriage took place at a Congregational church in Derbyshire, England, a few months ago. The bride and bridegroom had been engaged to one another for nearly 40 years. The reason for this lengthy courtship was that the bride had promised her dying mother that she would take care of an afflicted brother, thus making her marriage impossible. When at last the brother died she was free to wed the man who had waited for her so long, and the nuptials were celebrated amid the rejoicing of the countryside.

Neighbors.

Once upon a time, so runs the legend, there lived in far Judean hills two affectionate brothers tilling a common farm together. One had a wife and a house full of children; the other was a lonely man. One night in the harvest time the older brother said to his wife: "My brother is a lonely man. I will go out and move some of the sheaves from my side of the field over on his, so when he sees them in the morning his heart will be cheered by the abundance." And he did.

That night the other brother said to his workman: "My brother has a houseful and many mouths to fill. I am alone and do not need all this wealth. I will go and move some of my sheaves over on his field, so that he shall rejoice in the morning when he sees how great is his store. And he did. And they did it that night and the next in the sheltering dark. But on the third night the moon came out as they met face to face, each with his arms filled with sheaves. On that spot, says the legend, was built the Temple of Jerusalem, for it was esteemed that there earth came nearest to Heaven—Grain Growers Guide.

Getting It Back.

A county visitor at a New York hotel, having a dread of pickpockets, went to the clerk and handed him a hundred-dollar bill to be put in the safe.

Asking for it the next day, he was thunderstruck when the functionary to whom he had given the money coolly denied any recollection of the matter. Thereupon the countryman went to a lawyer.

"Get another hundred-dollar bill," said the lawyer, "and go, accompanied by a friend, back to the hotel; apologize to the clerk for your mistake; say it was a defect of memory; attribute it to drink or absent-mindedness; deposit the second hundred dollars in the presence of your friend, and come back to me."

The mystified ruralist obeyed his instructions to the very letter.

"Now," said the lawyer, "go back alone to the clerk and ask him for the hundred dollars. Knowing that your friend saw him receive it, he will give back the second hundred-dollar bill. Then take your friend with you the next day, approach the clerk, ask him boldly for that hundred dollars, and, as there was no witness to your receipt of the second bill, he will be forced to return the first also."

The ruse proved completely successful.

The lawyer sent his bill the next day. It was for a fee of one hundred dollars.

Most Prompt and Effective Cure for Bad Colds

When you have a bad cold you want a remedy that will not only give relief, but effect a prompt and permanent cure, a remedy that is pleasant to take, a remedy that contains nothing injurious. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets all these requirements. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, aids expectoration, opens the secretions and restores the system to a healthy condition. This remedy has a world wide sale and use, and can always be depended upon. Sold by Pauli Drug Co.

Scientific Puzzle.

Every one knows that the diamond is only charcoal crystallized; but there are a great many other things in Nature that, though possessing widely different properties, are composed of exactly equal quantities of the same elements.

The white of an egg and rattlesnake poison are formed of identically the same amounts of the same elements.

The oil of roses and common coal gas are each formed alike, both being composed of four atoms of hydrogen and four atoms of carbon.

Sugar and gum arabic are likewise brothers of the same weight and texture.

All the hydrocarbons, known to science as a combination of 16 atoms of hydrogen and ten atoms of carbon, are alike in their composition. To enumerate some: Oil of orange, lemon, cloves, ginger and black pepper.

The suggested explanation of these peculiarities, is that the atoms are placed differently toward one another in the molecules of the different substances.

Other things just as peculiar are evident when certain substances are united chemically. Thus hydrogen gas, which is odorless, and nitrogen gas, which is also odorless, when united, go to make ammonia, which has a very strong odor. Copper, which has no odor, and zinc, which also has none, when melted and mixed to give us brass, produce a substance with a characteristic smell.

Wonderful Skin Salve.

Bucklin's Arnica Salve is known everywhere as the best remedy made for all diseases of the skin, and also for burns, bruises and boils. Reduces inflammation and is soothing and healing. J. T. Sossman, publisher of News, of Cornelius, N. C., writes that one box helped his serious skin ailments after other remedies failed. Only 25c. Recommended by Pauli Drug Co.

CHAS. S. HARRIS EDITOR.

Democratic newspaper devoted to the interest of the City of Columbia and the people of Adair and adjacent counties.

Entered at the Columbia Post-office as second class mail matter.

WED. MAY 14, 1913.

In the last week's issue of the News, we called the attention of the Democrats of this, the 37th district, to the importance of electing a Representative. The majority of the next Senate and House of Representatives will be Democratic, and if this section of the State secures the needed relief from the heavy burden of taxation, as well as the other public questions, we should have a Representative and a Senator who are capable of presenting our cause; who are fearless, and who are interested in the future welfare of this part of the State of Kentucky. It is just as important that we should have a Senator as it is that we should have a Representative. In fact, it is more so. The counties of Adair, Cumberland, Russell, Clinton and Wayne compose the 16th Senatorial District. The term of Senator Bertram who was elected as a Democratic candidate in this district in 1909 will expire with this year, and his successor must be nominated in the August primary. Since this Senatorial District was formed, Russell county has never furnished the Senator. Adair, Cumberland, Clinton and Wayne have all had the honor of furnishing the Senators, and we believe that it is now time when we should all say to Russell, pick us out a good, hard working, conscientious Democrat, who will stand for the interest of the people of this section of the State, and who will be broad-minded enough to legislate in behalf of all the people of the State, and we will help nominate and elect him as the Senator from the 16th Senatorial District. In this connection, we invite the attention of our readers to an article which we reproduce in this issue, from the Elizabethtown News.

Senator James won out. His endorsement of Ben Marshall was ratified by the President and the appointment was made last week. Mr. Marshall is to be the Collector for the Ashland district.

The Underwood tariff bill passed the House by 142 majority. It will now be taken up in the Senate and there is no doubt of its passage.

In to-day's News Mr. W. T. McFarland announces his candidacy for County Judge of Adair county, subject to the action of the Progressive Republican party. There are but few better known men in Adair than Mr. McFarland. He has at all times stood for the right upon all questions touching the interest of the people—a man whose moral character is without stain, a sensible gentleman, who has many friends throughout the county. He is a man who weighs questions, giving them thought, and when he takes a position he does so conscientiously, believing that he is doing himself right and is acting for the best interest of his fellow man. Honest to the core, there is not a doubt but he would do justice to every man should he be nominated and elected county Judge of Adair county. To the many who have solicited him to make the race, promising their support, he feels thankful, and he assures the entire people should he be called to office, he will endeavor to the best of his ability to make a faithful official. Before the primary he expects to meet the voters of Adair county and personally present his candidacy.

CAUSES OF AN EMPTY TREASURY.

We find this interesting and more or less truthful statement in the Elizabethtown News:

"The Legislature which meets in Frankfort next winter will have a most serious financial condition to consider. Both for the benefit of the State and the Democratic party it will become necessary to provide for sufficient revenue to run the expenses of the State without a deficit at the end of each fiscal year. Twelve years ago Kentucky met all its expenses on a total revenue of four million dollars, and now it is running nearly a million dollars behind every year on a revenue of seven million dollars. In other words, the expenses of the State have been increased 100 per cent. in twelve years, while the revenue has only been increased 75 per cent.

We want to send to the Legislature the most intelligent and conservative men, who will probe deeply into the increased expenditures of the State and endeavor, if possible, to cut down the State expenditures a million dollars a year, if it can be done without impairing the welfare of the commonwealth. Offices have been created that are unnecessary, salaries have been raised that should not have been raised, fees have been increased in many offices that were wholly unnecessary, and, in addition, many large appropriations have been made that could have been avoided. We could point to lobbies from circuit judges to jailers that have in the last three sessions of the Legislature infested the State capitol and secured increased remuneration. We could also point out several departments of state where appropriations have been increased beyond the necessities of the proper management of these departments. There have been a number of institutions of various kinds which have received big wads of money from the State treasury which could have gotten along on half the amounts, and some of them should have been denied a single dollar. All of this character of appropriations have been secured by lobbies sent to Frankfort and buttonholing senators and representatives until they got what they wanted."

To which the Owensboro Messenger adds: Why not frankly admit that the responsibility for all this extravagance and waste is chiefly upon the heads of administrations who were intent upon building up invincible political machines?

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence

Gives the Farmer a Big Boost in making His Farm Prosperous

Did you ever notice that a prosperous farm is invariably well fenced, and is usually divided into small fields by a fence "horse-high, hog-tight and bull-strong"? Why is it?

Because the prosperous farmer realizes that good fences are as necessary to successful farming as fertile seeds, efficient labor and proper machinery. But the wise farmer investigates before he invests. Others just buy and are often "sold." "Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence is made with but one end in view—to give best service for the longest time at least cost. Investigating it costs nothing. Investing in it pays.

Made in Different Styles for FIELD, FARM, RANCH, LAWN, CHICKEN, POULTRY and RABBIT YARD and GARDEN

Every Rod Guaranteed

Ask your dealer for "Pittsburgh Perfect" and insist on his furnishing it. Do not allow him to persuade you that some other fence is just as good. If he doesn't sell it, write us direct.

WORKMAN in an IHC wagon factory was explaining the various stages of wagon construction to an interested visitor. He picked up two pieces of long leaf yellow pine, and asked the visitor to notice the difference in the weight of the two pieces. The lighter piece, he explained, was kiln-dried. The heavier piece was air-dried. It had retained the resinous sap, which adds strength and toughness, while in the kiln-dried piece of lumber this sap had been drawn out by the too rapid application of heat.

Every Stick of Lumber Used in IHC Wagons Is Carefully Selected, Air-Dried Stock

Here was something to think about. The visitor asked for a test as to the relative strength of the two pieces of wood. The air-dried piece held up under nearly double the weight under which the kiln-dried piece of lumber broke.

To the eye there was no difference between these two pieces of lumber, but when put to the test there was a vast difference. So it is throughout the construction of IHC wagons—Weber, Columbus, New Bettendorf, Steel King. They are built for real strength, light draft, and satisfactory service.

Weber and Columbus wagons have wood gears. Steel King and New Bettendorf have steel gears. For literature and full information regarding the IHC wagons best suited to your work write our nearest office.

Bowels are Basis of Child Health

The careful mother, who watches closely the physical peculiarities of her children, will soon discover that the most important thing in connection with a child's constant good health is to keep the bowels regularly open. Sluggish bowels will be followed by loss of appetite, restlessness during sleep, irritability and a dozen and one similar evidences of physical disorder.

At the first sign of such disorder give the child a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Peppermint at night on retiring and repeat the dose the following night if necessary. More than that will scarcely be needed. You will find that the child will recover its accustomed good spirits at once and will eat and sleep easily. This remedy is a vast improvement over salts, cathartics, laxative waters and similar things, which are altogether too powerful for a child. The homes of Mrs. Carrie McDonald, 1038 Trigg Ave., Memphis, Tenn., and Mrs. Sallie E. Griffith, Veedale, Ky., are always supplied with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Peppermint, and with them as with thousands of others, there is no substitute for this grand laxative. It is really more than a laxative, for it contains superior tonic properties which help to tone and strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels so that after a brief use of it all laxatives can be dispensed with and nature will do its own work.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size), can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

HERE are more reasons than one for making poultry a prominent part of the farm program. With 300 to 500 chickens on a place many tons of compost can be made, which will be worth hundreds of dollars in fertilizing the garden and field crops. It is necessary to keep a poultry house and yard liberally supplied with road dust or some other light soil. The floor under the roosts should have a fresh supply of this earth twice a week or oftener. It serves as an absorbent for the droppings, produces a rich compost very fast and destroys lice.

As a dust heap is one of the first essentials around a poultry plant this clean, fine earth comes into play there also. Dust which chickens use for their bath does not need to be changed more frequently than two or three times in a season. When it becomes dirty it should become part of the compost.

This fertilizer is valuable enough so that it ought to receive some care, and with several hundred chickens the annual accumulation will fill a good sized shed. It needs to be plowed in liberally every season, being of special value in the production of flowers, vegetables and small fruit. During the months when it is accumulating it needs to be tightly covered in a shed or pit to prevent the loss of nitrogen.

When the roosting platforms or the floors of a poultry house are cleaned, for every 100 pounds of dirt and manure thrown into the compost heap add ten pounds of salts of potassium and ten pounds of sawdust. If the lat-

WHEN DRAINAGE PAID.

Brought 450 Bushels of Corn and Added $1,000 to Land's Value.

Four hundred and fifty bushels of corn from eight acres that were almost worthless two years ago is the yield Mort Van Buskirk of Kincaid, Kan., received this year. Drainage did it. Here is the story:

Mr. Van Buskirk wrote two years ago to H. B. Walker, state drainage and irrigation engineer at the Kansas Agricultural college, asking what he should do with an eight acre piece of swampy land covered with willows. This land never had produced anything.

Mr. Walker advised him to drain the land, and he did. The land was planted to corn and yielded 450 bushels. Other corn in that neighborhood averaged from ten to forty bushels to the acre. The cost of draining the land was $125. Mr. Van Buskirk values his corn at 50 cents bushel, or $225. Besides the increased crop, he considers his land worth $1,000 more by the improvement—Kansas Industrialist.

Poultry House Ventilator.

Poultry houses are often ~~badly~~ ventilated. Of course it is out of the question always to tear them down and build anew or to install an expensive system of ventilation, so some form of ventilator may be the best device to adopt. In the illustration is shown a force draft ventilator built like a revolving stovepipe chimney top. The wing with the arrow on top turns the top so the opening pit always faces the wind. Some of the wind passes through this opening and out of the top at b. It thus creates a draft up the duct c and thus ventilates the poultry house below. American Agriculturist.

Here's a Good Combination. In this hunt for the profit dollar keep an eye on the combination of endive and clover or alfalfa hay. There is no other combination of feed like it for results in milk. A farmer could take these two pieces of forage and with good cows and no grain he could come out at the end of the year with a fair profit. Of course a few pounds of grain feed a day is a good investment.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Plant Many Trees.

In an article in the Woman's Home Companion on "The Friendly Summer Trees" the author, Frank A. Waugh, professor of horticulture in the Agricultural College of Massachusetts, lays down the general rule that only one tree out of every twenty planted ever grows to maturity. He therefore advises those who plant trees to plant liberally.

Roof or No Roof on Silo? So far as the silage is concerned, no roof is needed on the silo. Rain and snow do not hurt the silage. For the convenience and comfort of the person removing the silage from the silo it is better to have a roof.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Columbia, Ky.

He Was a Trust.

The drummer had gotten off at a station to find the village two miles away, and the shakley old bob-tailed car waiting to convey passengers over the shakley old road was in charge of an old man who sat on the platform smoking complacency.

"Does this—this thing run to the village?" queried the drummer as he walked around the car.

"It does when I want it to," was the reply.

"Oh, then you have got something to say about it? Perhaps you own the old crowbar of a horse?"

"I do."

"And the car?"

"Yes."

"And the line?"

"Yes, I'm the owner of everything in sight."

"Mighty handy, isn't it?" continued the drummer in sarcastic tones.

"Yes, tolerably handy," was the placid reply. "I also own the only two stores in the village and the only hotel, and if you don't like my style you'd better wait for the next train to come along and take you out of the country."

"Cardui Cured Me"

For nearly ten years, at different times, Mrs. Mary Jenkins of Treadway, Tenn., suffered with womanly troubles. She says: "At last, I took down and thought I would die. I could not sleep. I couldn't eat. I had pains all over. The doctors gave me up. I read that Cardui had helped so many, and I began to take it, and it cured me. Cardui saved my life! Now, I can do anything."

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

If you are weak, tired, worn-out, or suffer from any of the pains peculiar to weak women, such as headache, backache, dragging-down feelings, pains in arm, side, hip or limbs, and other symptoms of womanly trouble, you should try Cardui, the woman's tonic. Prepared from perfectly harmless, vegetable ingredients, Cardui is the best remedy for you to use, as it can do you nothing but good. It contains no dangerous drugs. It has no bad after-effects. Ask your druggist. He sells and recommends Cardui.

Success Crowns Search.

An unrelenting search, conducted for more than eight years, leading from Joliet, Ill., to Chicago and thence across several states, was ended at Detroit, Mich., by Mrs. Laura Slavin, who tenaciously limited finances and total blindness. She charges her husband, who is a practicing physician, with desertion.

The woman told the police captain she was stricken blind eight years ago. Two months later her husband left her, leaving in her care two children, aged, two and seven. Forced to obtain employment following an operation to restore her eyesight, she nevertheless cast around for means to locate her husband. She followed him from one city to another, but always too late, until she finally overtook him in Detroit.

Royal Business Men.

Not a few of the rulers of the world are prosperous business men. The most conspicuous example is the Kaiser, who includes among his interests a porcelain factory. The general conduct of it is based upon rules and regulations laid down by the emperor. Indeed, it is said, the emperor is not above engaging employees himself, adjusting their wages, and even designing certain of the wares turned out. The emperor is a model employer, anxious as to the comfort of his men, who have been provided with cottages and pensions and given a share in the profits, which are reported to approximate $50,000 a year.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the prince of Lippe-Detmold is a dealer in butter and eggs, while he has as a side line a busy brick factory that adds materially to his income.

The King of Wurtemberg is the proprietor of two hotels within his domains which are reported to be worth something like $45,000 annually to him.

The emperor of Austria-Hungary, like the kaiser, operates a china factory. This establish-

AT SEA IN AN OPEN BOAT.An Anxious Experience Off the Rock Bound Coast of Korea.

The perils of the small boat at sea are told by Jack London in an article on "Small Boat Sailing" in the Yachting Monthly:

"About the liveliest eight days of my life were spent in a small boat on the west coast of Korea," he writes. "I was in an open boat, a sampan, on a rocky coast where there were no light-houses and where the tides ran from thirty to sixty feet. My crew were Japanese fishermen. We did not speak each other's language. Yet there was nothing monotonous about that trip. Never shall I forget one particular cold, bitter dawn, when in the thick of driving snow we took in sail and dropped our small anchor.

"The Japanese crawled under a communal rice mat and went to sleep. I joined them, and for several hours we dozed fitfully. Then a sea deluged us with icy water and we found several inches of snow on top of the mat.

"It soon became a case of swamping at our anchor. Seas were splashing on board in growing volume, and we bailed constantly. And still my fisherman crew eyed the surf battered shore and did nothing.

"At last, after many narrow escapes from complete swamping, the fishermen got into action. All hands tailed on to the anchor and hove it up. Forard, as the boat's head paid off, we set a patch of sail about the size of a flour sack. And we headed straight for the rocky shore. I unlaced my shoes, unbuttoned my greatcoat and coat and was ready to make a quick partial strip a minute or so before we struck. But we didn't strike, and as we rushed in I saw the beauty of the situation. Before us opened a narrow channel, frilled at its mouth with breaking seas. Yet long before, when I had scanned the shore closely, there had been no such channel. I had forgotten the thirty foot tide. And it was for this time that the Japanese had so precariously waited."

"SCRATCHED ROCKS."They Mark the Course of Glaciers Adown Our Continent.

Throughout the northern United States, from the Atlantic ocean to the far northwest and as far south as Kentucky, huge boulders are found scattered at haphazard. The rocks and ledges are smoothed and marked with scratches varying from faint lines to broad grooves two feet deep. Some of these boulders, weighing many tons, are so balanced on a ledge that a slight touch will rock them. The Indians used them as "alarm bells."

The grooves or scratches on these rocks are as a rule parallel and extend north and south. South of the above mentioned area neither boulders nor scratched rocks can be found.

How came the boulders in their position? What scratched the rocks?

Agassiz, familiar with the glaciers of the Alps, probably gave the true answer. He showed that a similar state of things is produced today by the glaciers of Switzerland. These streams of ice creep slowly down from the lofty summits of the Alps through the valleys to the plains. They bear on their surface huge rocks fallen from surrounding cliffs. The stones frozen in the bottom of the glacier, pressed down by the enormous weight of ice above them, scratch and groove the rocks beneath, as the tool of a carpenter gouges out a piece of wood.

What was the condition of America when similar effects were produced? Instead of local glaciers scattered in the valleys, the whole surface now covered with boulders must have been hidden by an immense sheet of ice. Judging from the marks on the rocks, the sheet moved from the north toward the south, carrying with it masses of rock.—Harper's Weekly.

Expectancy of Life.

All insurance is calculated upon the probable length of time a person has to live. This is called the average expectancy. Many elaborate tables have been made up by the insurance companies, some based upon one set of data, some upon another, and consequently they vary slightly. The British life annuity tables, a fair calculation, show that a man of fifty has a natural expectancy of living 21.2 years, a woman of the same age 23.5 years; at sixty his expectancy is 14.8 years, hers is 17 years; at seventy his is 9.5 years, hers 10.9 years.

She Saw.

"Why is Mrs. Wombat wearing such dowdy clothes lately? She spends half her husband's income on dress. But why is she wearing such mean looking clothes just now?"

"Her husband's mother is visiting her just now. See?"

The other woman saw.—Pittsburgh Post.

GLASS IS PECULIAR.It Has a Number of Curious and Contradictory Qualities.

Glass is one of the most interesting as well as one of the most peculiar things in the world. It has curious and contradictory qualities, and many astonishing phenomena are connected with it. Brittle and breakable as it is, yet it exceeds almost all other bodies in elasticity.

If two glass balls are made to strike each other at a given force the recoil, by virtue of their elasticity, will be nearly equal to their original impetus. Connected with its brittleness are some very singular facts.

Take a hollow sphere with a hole and stop the hole with the finger, so as to prevent the external and internal air from communicating, and the sphere will fly to pieces by the mere heat of the hand. Vessels made of glass that have been suddenly cooled possess the curious property of being able to resist hard blows given to them from without, but will be instantly shivered by a small particle of flint dropped into their cavities. This property seems to depend upon the comparative thickness of the bottom; the thicker the bottom is the more certainty of breakage by this experiment. Some of these vessels it is stated, have resisted the stroke of a mallet given with sufficient force to drive a nail into wood, and heavy bodies, such as iron, bits of wood, jasper stone, etc., have been cast into them from a height of two or three feet with out any effect, yet a fragment of flint not larger than a pea dropped from a height of three inches has made them fly.

ELIZA WAS GENEROUS.Her Munificent Offer For an Original Five Act Tragedy.

People are likely to look back comiserately upon the past in these days of modern progress. When we hear what the most prolific of present day novelists receives a word and what the weekly royalties of any well known playwrights are we say that the literary profession has come into its own. Some hark back to the contrasting tale—that Milton received only $5 for the first copyright of "Paradise Lost," an epic in twelve books containing a total of 10,565 lines, but that was over two centuries ago. Poe received $10 for "The Raven." That may be dismissed with the statement that poetry never paid.

The modern way of making money by literature is even more recent than is generally thought. Alexander Hill of Cincinnati, one of the best known bookmen and collectors of the middle west, has a letter in his collection of autographs that proves this point.

Two generations ago Eliza Logan was a leading actress in America. Read her letter, O budding genius on the typewriter, and be glad that when you are paid it is space rates for the local paper:

Tremont House, Boston, May 17, 1854.
E. Dusseault, Jr., Charlestown, Mass.
Sir—I wish an original five act tragedy—the feature to be a heroine, myself the personator of it; the scene not to be laid in this country; the plot to be optional with the author—for which, if I like it, will pay $5. Respectfully,
ELIZA LOGAN

American Leaf Colors.

It has been observed that the leaves of American trees, such as maples, scarlet oaks and so forth, which at home exhibit splendid colors in the autumn, fall below their reputation in this regard when transplanted in England or on the continent of Europe. An English observer, who has been studying the causes of the autumn tints of trees, thinks the superiority of our woodlands arises from the soft and mild yet glowing climatic conditions prevailing here in the fall. England, it is added, is rarely blessed with an Indian summer. When the climatic conditions permit the leaves to retain considerable vitality in the autumn the colored pigment is normally developed; hence the glorious forests of the United States.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Regulating Price of Books.

The price of books was once a matter for legislation in England. An act of 1534, which seems never to have been repealed, provides that any complaint regarding the price of books should be considered by "the lord chamberlain, the lord treasurer and the justices or any two of these," and that those dignitaries should have "power and authority to reform and redress the enhancing of the prices of printed books and to limit the prices of the books and the offenders should lose and forfeit for every book by them sold whereof the price be enhanced the sum of 3s. 6d."—London Mail.

She Didn't Do It.

The family jar waxed fiercer. "You talk about my being to blame for our marrying!" shrilly exclaimed Mrs. Vick-Senn. "John Henry, did I hunt you out and then make love to you?"

"No!" he snorted. "But you could have given me the glassy eye and sent me about my business, and you didn't do it, madam—you didn't do it!"—Chicago Tribune.

Capital Punishment.

"Mamma, did you love to flirt when you were young?"

"I am afraid I did, dear."

"And were you ever punished for it, mamma?"

"Cruelly, dear. I married your father."—Paris Rire.

Hookworm in Kentucky.

This little parasite has been found to prevail to an alarming degree among the people of the mountain sections of the State. It is said to bring on indolence and indifference in the persons afflicted. If indolence and indifference are sure signs of hookworm, then the farmers in many sections of our State are generally infected and the South is bad off. It used to be called by various names—laziness, malaria, etc.—but certain scientists now inform us that this microscopic parasites is at the bottom of our inertia. It is good to know it, for they also tell us the trouble can be remedied. There is no need now for the man to sit on the rail fence crying because a splinter is sticking into him and he too hook-wormed to move. The State should proceed to get rid of the miserable little pest that is sapping our manhood away. We have a great agricultural State, good men, fine climate and should lead the world in field and live stock production.

Obituary

On Wednesday night, May 7, 1913, the death angel visited the home of Mr. Dick Akin and claimed for its victim his loving wife, Susie Akin. She had been sick for several months, afflicted with a cancer. She leaves a loving husband and four children to mourn their loss, two children having preceded her to the grave several years ago, besides a host of relatives and friends, who deeply sympathize with the bereaved ones in this the saddest hour of their life. Mrs. Akin was a kind and loving mother and was loved by all; she will be greatly missed in the neighborhood in which she lived, but most of all by her husband and children, who are so lonely without her. But weep not as those who have no hope, for she is safe with Jesus and is beckoning to loved ones to join her around God's eternal throne where there will be no partings and sad goodbyes. Her sickness was one of suffering, although every effort was made to relieve her pain but to no avail. The golden bowl is broken and she has gone to try the realities of that great beyond. It is such a sweet thought for her loved ones to know she is at rest with Jesus and that sooner or later they all can join her in heaven, an unbroken band around God's eternal throne. God saw she had done enough and said labor no more in the earthly vineyard, but come come to a broader field. Dear ones, look to Jesus, he can heal your broken hearts, and live to meet her in heaven. It is hard to give up loved ones but God knows best and let us say God's will be done and not ours.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. G. R. Abrel after which the remains were laid to rest in the family burying ground in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, who had assembled to pay the last respects to a noble and good woman.

Broken hearted, sorrowing loved ones, Hear God's promise pure and blest, Come to me ye heavy laden, I will surely give you rest. Cast your cares on loving Jesus, Until life's hard toils are won; Sweetly, then, go home to glory, Home, sweet home that you have won.

Then peaceful be her silent slumber, Peaceful in the grave so low, She no more will join our number, She no more our tears will know.

Let us ever hope to meet her Where the cares of life have fled; Where there's joy and peace and gladness,

Where no farewell tears are seen. Brittie Abrel, Glensfork, Ky.

United States Good Roads Association.

Birmingham, Ala., May 11, 1913.

Editor News:

Summary of the proceedings of the National Good Roads Federation, held at Birmingham, Ala. April 24th and 25th, 1913:

By the terms of the adopted Constitution, the National Good Roads Federation will hereafter be known as the United States Good Roads Association. The Constitution was written by a committee composed of Thomas L. Cannon, of Missouri; J. A. Roundtree, of Alabama; R. G. Railey, of Kentucky; W. A. Johnston, of Tennessee; S. M. Johnson, of New Mexico; B. F. Billingsley, of Arizona; C. Hendrick, of Mississippi; V. B. Adkins, of Alabama; F. H. Colcock, of South Carolina; and S. E. DeRochni, of California.

It provides that the membership fee shall be one dollar per annum and that the sisterhood of States shall each be entitled to one director and three Vice Presidents.

Attorney R. G. Railey, of Thompkinsville, Senator M. O. Scott, of Edmonton, and Attorney General James Garnett, of Frankfort, were elected Vice Presidents for the State of Kentucky, Mr. W. W. Duffield, of Harlan, for Director.

The Constitution provides for an Honorary Advisory Board, composed of Governors and Lieut. Governors of the States.

Under this provision, Gov. James B. McCreary, of Frankfort, and Lieut. Governor Edward J. McDermott, of Louisville, were made members of the Board.

The following National officers were elected by the Association for a year, or until their successors are elected:

President, United States Senator, John H. Bankhead, of Alabama—"the father of Good Roads of America;" First Vice President, Dell M. Potter, of Arizona; Second Vice President, E. J. Watson, of South Carolina; Third Vice President, John W. O'Neill, of Alabama; Secretary, J. A. Roundtree, of Birmingham; Treasurer, Judge William Grubb, of Alabama; and Managing Director, T. L. Cannon, of St. Louis.

Five Delegates were elected to attend, in June, the International Good Roads Congress which will meet in London, England.

There was presented by the Association to United States Senator, John H. Bankhead, President, a beautiful ebony gold-headed cane bearing the inscription, "Presented to John Hollis Bankhead, First President of the United States Good Roads Association." This was presented and accepted with very pleasing speeches.

The various committees made their reports and the same were adopted. The Good Roads Congress paid a high tribute to United States Senator, John H. Bankhead, President, by extending him a rising vote of thanks for the fair and impartial way in which he presided. Great speeches were made by great men from all parts of the world. When Kentucky's good Governor appointed the writer to go and represent the great State in the National Good Roads Congress, the latter little comprehended the magnitude of the mission, but he determined to represent to the very best of his ability the greatest State in the Union. After his little speech, the Kentuckian was made a member of the two most important committees and elected Vice President for Kentucky.

He tried to "make good" for the State. The Good Roads movement throughout the nation is the greatest movement of today.
